From a study of the table on fertilizing substances in different soils and a comparison of this table with the one on fertilizing substances in farm crops, it will be seen that nitrogen is the element which, from ordinary soils and under ordinary conditions of farming, is likely to be the soonest exhausted. Ordinarily, then, the farmers attention should be turned to methods of restoring nitrogen. If a sufficient quantity of manure were produced on the farm, of course the best method of fertilizing would be to apply barnyard manure to the soil, as it not only contains nitrogen, but also phosphoric acid and potash, the other needed elements. But it is not always possible to do this. There is a class of plants, however, called legumes, that have the power to add nitrogen to the soil. Peas, beans, clover and alfalfa belong to this class. It is the purpose of this chapter to explain the manner in which these plants add nitrogen to the soil. The air that we breathe is composed largely of two gases--oxygen and nitrogen. Both...
