Gerard observes, The seede should be sowen vpon a bed of hot horse-dung, and some fine sifted earth. It is now as hardy as any annual plant, and the self-sown seeds generally produce the strongest plants. The major variety of this brilliant plant was not brought to Europe until the year 1684, and two years afterwards it was cultivated in our gardens. This plant has been named Acriviola, of acer, sharp, and viola, violet, i. e. Sharp Violet. The blossoms have been observed to emit electric sparks towards evening, which was first noticed by the daughter of the illustrious Linnaeus, who could not credit the account until he had seen the phenomenon. It is seen most distinctly with the eye partly closed. The double-flowered nasturtium has an agreeable perfume, but is not so well tasted as the single, and being only an ornamental greenhouse plant, it does not properly belong to this work.
